Eva Gore-Booth / 22 May 1870 / 30 June 1926

Esther Roper / 4 August 1868 / 28 April 1938

Life that is love is God

Gore-Booth hyphenated by E. G.-B.'s nephew in his book 'With Great Truth and Respect' (see below); listed alphabetically as Booth, Eva Gore in Robert Lynd's 'Anthology of Modern Verse', q.v. (Methuen 1921).

'Quiet and visionary, Eva Gore-Booth settled in Manchester, devoting her life partly to social work but even more to poetry, religion and philosophy, much of it against a background of Irish legend. She is best remembered for The Little Waves of Breefnay.'
