

Just presented by American admirers of Keats and unveiled
by Edmund Gosse, 1896.

Richard's painting of Beardsley at the unveiling is in the Tate.
(More background in Koch)

John Keats, poet (1795-1821), lived much of the last 3 years of his life in Hampstead, where he wrote, inter alia, 'Ode to a Nightingale'. He died and was buried in Rome.